Jocelyne Cesari
Professor of Religion and Politics, University of Birmingham (UK) and Georgetown University T. J.
Dermot Dunphy Visiting Professor of Religion, Violence, and Peacebuilding at Harvard Divinity
School

I have served four years on the Executive Committee of the European Academy of Religion and as president elect from 2018 to 2019. In this capacity I have labored to attract scholars working at the intersection of religion and social sciences and to facilitate networking and opportunities to work across countries and disciplines, on the topic of religion and politics. (see <https://www.europeanacademyofreligion.org/members-activities>). I see my position in the next executive committee as a unique opportunity to keep the momentum of the last four years of work and to continue putting my 25 years of interdisciplinary approach to religion, society and politics to the service of the Academy.

I am therefore submitting to you my application to be on the 2022-2026 executive committee. In this renewed capacity, I intend to:

- 1) continue to raise the visibility of our organization and build bridges with other European academic institutions of the study of religions specialized either in a particular discipline or areas.
- 2) Expand the scope of our cooperation to international associations such as the International Studies Association, the American Academy of Religion or the Scientific Society for the Study of Religion in which I have leadership responsibilities. In this capacity, I would like to work with the members of the new executive committee to initiate different forms of cooperation with these organizations such as co-sponsorship of panels or events, communication between scholars working on similar topics or issues..
- 3) Engage young scholars working on cultural areas and discipline still underrepresented: Balkans, Eastern Europe on one hand, and political science, sociology, psychology on the other hand. One specific action could be to create on the Eare website, a forum to discuss published work of the new generation and initiate a discussion among our members and beyond. It will also be worth exploring the possibility of a mentoring program where doctoral and postdoc students could interact with senior scholars through workshops online and/or during our annual conference.
- 4) Ensure and increase the ethnic, gender, and religious diversity of the Academy activities (forum, panels, publication..) and leadership.
- 5) Make the work of the section more visible to international Governmental and non governmental institutions addressing religion by creating bridges with not only the research units of the EU but also UNESCO sand programs of the UN on refugees, humanitarian crisis etc..
